

SAID FERNSTROM HAD

And Then Robertson Used Some Cuss Words.

SESSION THAT SIZZLED

MADE THE CITY ENGINEER JUMP SIDEWAYS.

Councilman Dignity Was Shattered at the Meeting of Committee Appointed to Investigate the Engineer's Expenses—Farnstrom Criticized Engineer and Robertson Called Him a Liar.

The meeting of the special committee appointed to investigate the charge of Councilman Romney that City Engineer Kelsey had over-expended his allowance for work relative to the city's water supply, was marked by sensational episodes and interjected with personalities upon the part of the members. The he was passed between Robertson and Farnstrom, and nearly every proposition that arose provoked the wrath of one or more of the committee-men. What investigation there was proved that Mr. Romney had been misled by an erroneous table of figures presented by the auditor, but the general tenor of the meeting seemed to be the discussion of "any old subject," from the employment of geodes up or down—and none of these were slighted.

It was shown that Engineer Kelsey had expended to May 1, $3,272.12, while his allowance is $3,284, giving him about $12 yet to go on. But it was claimed that a great many extra items had been charged by the engineer to an account separate from his allowance, which Mr. Kelsey said he had done with an understanding with members of the finance committee that extra work ordered would not be charged to his allowance. This matter was discussed at length, as was the fact that the engineer had thus far made no report of the investigation he had been carrying on. It was Farnstrom's charge that the report was being held back for political purposes, that led to the altercation between him and Robertson.

A difference of $37 was made between the figures of the auditor and those of the engineer in reporting the amounts expended. The auditor's total was that much higher than the engineer's, but where the error lay was not discovered.

Fernstrom Had Figures.

After all the members had examined the reports and figures before them, Farnstrom made known that he had some figures taken from the auditor on the same question, whereat Robertson remarked that he didn't see why Farnstrom's figures "came in." The latter replied, "Well, I'll explain them, and Robertson retorted, "We'll need it." From this on it grew.

"It seems to me," said Farnstrom, "that there is something dead wrong with this department."

"Well, if you want to make a fight on that, do it separately. If you can find anything wrong with the engineer, I'm with you to have him removed, but I want the man to have a fair show," said Robertson.

Well—Now, Mr. Robertson, I think he will get a fair show all right.

"Yes, he will," said Robertson. "I've no doubt he will here. I'm not afraid of you finding out anything, Farnstrom, I'll tell you that," turning to the councilman from the third.

"That's all right," said the latter; "but take any other department."

"The sanitary, eh?" interrupted Robertson.

"Yes, the sanitary." And then followed a loud-toned argument as to assistants and deputies employed, Farnstrom observing that such quibbles were nonsensical.

Mr. Farnstrom then began a cross-examination of the engineer, who was present, asking him first if everything the city asked him to do "had to be charged extra."

"I told the sub-committee yesterday that the allowance was not enough to cover the field work," was the reply.

"It means, then, that practically all the work outside of your office is charged extra?"

"No, it does not mean any such thing. Everything the engineer does outside of his office is charged extra."

"Here's an item of $40 for bush-hammering?"

"Yes. We had to measure it to make an estimate."

The matter of the delayed report was here taken up, Farnstrom contending that the report should have been ready now that the money is expended.

Mr. Kelsey stated that he would need some time yet to make the report, and Robertson stated that he had "bought the facts he must compile and study them, of course."

Useless Expenditure.

"Well," said Farnstrom, "it seems to me that there has been a useless expenditure of a whole lot of money on this investigation. Certain it is, we do not know anything about it now."

"I can't report before that time," said Farnstrom, "and I understand it."

"We've made a mistake of this whole business," said Farnstrom, "at which Robertson observed, with irony, 'We always do.'"

Mr. Howe said he felt that the report should be made earlier, and Farnstrom was quick to respond.

"You've spent $4,000 or $5,000 on this, Mr. Kelsey, and you don't seem to know anything about it. It is, we do not. We can't get a report. To tell the truth, I believe your holding it back for political effect."

"I deny that," began Kelsey indignantly, but before he could go further, Farnstrom added:

"What's more, I know it for a fact."

Lie Passed.

"I object to those remarks," exclaimed Robertson, turning quickly upon Farnstrom. "You lie when you say it. You are lying and you know you are when you say it is a fact."

"So are you," retorted Farnstrom. "You are no more honorable than me, Mr. Robertson. I want you to understand it."

"Contemptible puppy!" sneered Robertson, taking his seat from which he had risen to shake his finger at Farnstrom.

The latter then dropped a remark about Kelsey's going into court on some case a while ago to testify to certain things, claiming that although he didn't testify, he (Farnstrom) knew what the testimony was to be.

"I'd like to know how in—how you know, when he didn't testify," Robertson shouted, but quiet was restored by the chairman and Mr. Welser.

Fernstrom's Report.

There was a long discussion as to what the committee should report to the council, and Farnstrom's motion that conditions as found be reported was unopposed by Robertson, who suggested that the "brilliant gentleman make a motion an Englishman can understand."

"Yes," replied Farnstrom, "I may make a motion even a Scotchman can understand."

Robertson favored a report only on the subject referred to them, while the other committee-men desired to embody what they had found in the course of the investigation. The matter was left with Chairman Howe, who will draw up a report and submit it tomorrow to the committee. It will probably recommend that the engineer be instructed to compile a report of his work as soon as practicable, and that he has not over-expended his accounts; tell of the understanding with members of the finance committee and explain the error of Councilman Romney's resolution.

LETTER FROM MAJOR YOUNG.

Expresses Thanks of Utah Men For Benefit Fund.

Deputy Clerk George Blair has received a letter from Major Richard W. Young, commanding the Utah volunteer artillery at Manila, in which the major acknowledges the receipt of a draft of $100, the proceeds of Dr. Pronin's lecture on the Philippines. The money is to be used for providing any comforts or necessities that the Utah boys desire. Major Young's letter is dated at Calumpit, April 28, and left Manila on May 3, reaching Salt Lake June 3. Major Young expresses his thanks on behalf of the men of his command for the money, and says he had read the accounts of the lectures in the Salt Lake papers, and modestly says he feels that his own part in the work of the Utah artillery has been made rather too prominent. He sends his best wishes to all at home, and says that the Utah men are expecting orders to return home almost any day. They will be received with joy by everyone, he states, for the men are anxious to be back in America again. They feel that they have done their part for the flag and are willing to return once more to the walks of peace.

BRIEF LOCALS.

John W. Keogh, the stockman, went east last night.

Yesterday's bank clearings were $107,417, and for the same day last year $128,620.

John M. Foster and Mary C. King, both of this city, were married yesterday at the court house by Deputy Clerk Blair.

Clerk Moreton of the board of education will issue pay checks this forenoon at his office for the salaries of the teachers to the 272 teachers, principals and supervisors. The payroll aggregates $21,746.60, and much of it will go for the purchase of railroad tickets and incidentals for summer vacations.

Peter J. Jakstrop has a not unusual objection to looking the way away from a revolver barrel and he has caused the arrest of the man who was at the other end of the barrel. Several Utah people were aboard this boat, among them being Joseph P. Smith, Jr., and Richard L. Anderson, President of the George Bowman, Arthur A. Woods and William H. Armstrong of this city, and E. H. H. of Pleasant Grove.

In Justice Sommer's court Henry Vogel entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of forgery preferred against him on Saturday. He was held in $500 bail, and he was held in bonds of $500, in default of which he was to be held in jail to await his examination trial which occurs tomorrow at 10 o'clock. Vogel is said to have forged the name of H. Stenrod to a check for $4,000, which was cashed by George G. G.

The board of public works yesterday awarded to D. R. Parry the contract to construct an eight-inch sewer lateral on the corner of Ninth East street, between South Temple and First South streets, for the sum of $67.72, the city having been awarded by the board of public works, in the sum of $62.15, was rejected. The board's action will be reported to the city council this evening for approval.

BEAUTIES OF THE ORDER

WHAT IT IS DOING FOR ITS MEMBERS.

Large Audience of Men in the Grand Opera House Hears An Interesting and Eloquent Address By One of the Chief Men in the Order of Woodmen—Much Enthusiasm.

Head Consul F. A. Falkenburg talked to a large audience of Woodmen of the World at the Grand theatre last evening. The occasion was denominated a "Monster Log Rolling," and men only were invited. Four or five hundred of those interested in the order attended. The meeting was called to order by C. J. Higson, and Edward Sloan gave the address of welcome introducing Mr. Falkenburg. For over an hour Mr.

HEAD CONSUL FALKENBURG ADDRESSES THE WOODMEN.

Falkenburg spoke on the principles of Woodcraft, but so interesting and polished a speaker is he that not for an instant did he lose the attention of his audience.

Apostrophe to Home.

Beginning with an apostrophe to home and home life, Mr. Falkenburg said that Woodcraft was a service to the people in existence to make it possible for every man to protect his home and his loved ones. The great end of Woodcraft is to protect the home and the loved ones. The great end of Woodcraft is to protect the home and the loved ones.

As this latter list contains the names of several gentlemen who belong to a class described by Mr. Lannan's organ as "Asiatics," it was predicted last evening that the storm starting journey would demand a revision.

EXTRADITION WITH MEXICO.

List of Offenses Covered By the New Treaty.

The Thiel detective agency has notified its general agent, W. S. Seavey, who is in the city, that the new extradition treaty with Mexico, which recently went into effect, authorizes the extradition of persons charged with the following crimes:

Murder, rape, bigamy, arson, piracy, burglary and larceny on the high seas, and all offenses involving the introduction of banks or business houses, robbery, forgery, or uttering of forged papers; forgery, or falsification of official accounts; counterfeiting, the introduction of instruments for counterfeiting, embezzlement or malversation of public funds, embezzlement of bank funds, kidnapping of minors and adults, mayhem, malicious destruction of railway property or vehicles, obtaining money or valuables by false devices or threats, and all offenses involving the introduction of more than $25, attempting to commit any of the foregoing crimes.

Extradition will not take place in any of the following cases: When evidence under laws where crime is charged would not justify arrest and commitment; when crime charged is political; when proceeding the barred by statute of limitation; when person charged is undergoing, or has undergone, punishment in country from which extradition is demanded.

Mexico was denounced and suspended because of some differences between the two governments as to the enforcement of the treaty, but the negotiations which followed resulted in a new agreement, which took effect in the new treaty on April 25 last.

WILL HANNAIZE THE CITY

McKINLEY REORGANIZATION TO PROCEED WITH VIGOR.

Republican League Executive Committee Will Run the New Machine and Names Two Committees.

The chief push in the movement to reorganize the people of Utah to Algerian, the gold standard and embalm beef, proposes to set its machinery in motion without further delay, now that Mr. Lannan has cleared the way by pronouncing the silver issue dead.

The meeting of the executive committee of the Republican League clubs of Utah was held last night at the office of Hoyt Sherman. It is said that this committee recently decided itself to be the whole thing in Utah McKinleyism, and proposes to dictate who shall and who shall not occupy front seats at Hanna's circus.

The committee started in last night by naming the following committee to take charge of the reorganization of league clubs in this city: Robert Campbell, chairman; Alma Katz, L. P. Palmer, Frank Emery and Peter Condie. This committee is expected to go right to work, and whenever it can catch a citizen who is willing to swallow
